Current Events Interpreted

Can't the World Laugh?

While America retains its usual tolerant good humor, the rest of the world seems to be going hypersensitive and super self-conscious. There has been a veritable epidemic of bans and confiscations of American magazines in foreign countries. Recently it was Fortune, whose excellent Japanese number was banned in Japan, branded "offensive to the emperor." Cuba banned an Esquire because of an article, "Latins Are Lousy Lovers," and last week confiscated a subsequent issue which proclaimed that "Latins Lack A Sense of Humor." Cuba also banned the Literary Digest because it told of a quarrel between President Gomez and Colonel Batista. And now even the British, the unperturbable British! But at least they didn't ban a whole magazine. They tore out pages 19 and 20 of the magazine Time before permitting distribution, because it contained some details of the King Edward-Mrs. Simpson friendship.

Shades of Victoria

Mrs. Wallis Simpson, American-born friend of England's bachelor king, is today the most talked-about woman in the world, but all the talk is at bottom just the opposite of sensational. More than anything else, it seems to prove that the Victorian era of hypocrisy has at last ended in court circles, as it had long ago for the rest of England. Edward has had to endure a few snubs, mostly borne out of jealously on the part of English prestige-seekers, but the fuss will probably soon be forgotten. Those who would like to think of the king as another Henry VIII or Charles II or George IV will be disappointed, as probably also will those who suggest that the convention-defying and very human Edward is risking the prestige of his throne.

Good News

Another sign of the times—better times—were the reports that came out of Coronado the other day from the annual meeting of the California State Hotel association. California hostelries, said the hotel men, are nearer to normal business now than they have been in half a dozen years. Which is good news we can all understand.

Not Enough Policemen

Chief G-Man J. Edgar Hoover, after an elaborate study of conditions in 2000 American cities, last week reported a conclusion on why crime is more prevalent in some cities than in others. Probably little Rollo, aged four, would have given the same answer, as would any of the rest of us. But the G-men can't afford to guess. They have to know. The conclusion: cities with most crime are those cities with the smallest number of policemen per capita, and vice versa. Cities in the top fourth, averaging 2.3 policemen per 1000 inhabitants, had an average of 50.9 robberies in the first half of 1936. Cities in the bottom four, having an average of .9 policemen per 1000, averaged 93.2 similar offenses. So after all, policemen do earn their pay.

The Japanese Are Worried

It would be hard to say how many Californians are really worried about it, but Japanese officials estimate that there will be a total extinction of native born Japanese in the United States within the next decade. But one thing is certain. The Japanese association in this country is worried about it. They already notice a shortage of Japanese farm labor for Japanese farms in America. There are some 90,000 Japanese in California, but the majority are American born. These Japanese are second generation born of native Japanese parents, and the American born Japanese don't like to work on farms as their fathers did.

Registration Records

Don't listen to political speeches to find out the cold dope on how really intense the presidential election fight is. Look at the registration figures. There you will find that there'll probably be a record vote on Nov. 3, indicating that most everybody is pretty strongly for or against one candidate or the other.

Approve Baker, Rep. Candidate From 8th Dist.

Mt. View, Oct. 22—Charles G. and Kathleen Norris, noted authors and commentators and registered Democrats who supported John McGrath in his two previous congressional campaigns, today told why they were firm in the belief that Alonzo L. Baker should be elected to congress in 1936.

The Norrises have a host of friends in the eighth district's five counties and are distinguished in social and literary circles and as leaders among the laymen in the Catholic church. A letter to Mr. Baker this week follows:

"Dear Mr. Baker:

I want you to konw that Mrs. Norris (Kathleen Norris) and I warmly approve your candidacy for congress and hope you are elected. If our names are of any value to you in your campaign, you are at liberty to quote us in any way you like.

Mrs. Norris would like to speak for you were it not for the fact that she is dated up between now and election with a great number of speeches in behalf of the Emergency Peace campaign. She leaves the end of the week for Seattle, Portland, Spokane, and Tacoma.

Wishing you every success, I am,

Sincerely,

(Signed) Charles G. Norris"

Straw Vote Shows Lots of Opposition To Proposition 11

San Jose, Oct. 22—In the first poll taken among school teachers of the state on Proposition No. 11 on the Nov. 3 ballot, the instructor's tenure amendment, members of the San Jose school department voted practically 100 per cent against the proposal, according to a statement made here today by Walter Bachrodt, superintendent of the San Jose school department.

The poll of the teaching personnel of the San Jose schools with 530 teachers voting by secret ballot, showed a vote against the amendment of 99.2 per cent.

Opposition to No. 11 has already been voiced by the California Teachers association, representing 37,000 state teachers, by the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, the association of college women and many other organizations of state wide influence.

"The result of the San Jose vote," said Bachrodt, "may be taken, we believe, as an accurate reflex of the attitude of educators and friends of education generally against proposed amendment No. 11. The amendment is an ill advised and ill timed effort to tamper with the present California tenure law, regarded as a model throughout the nation."

Landon and Knox Meeting, Saratoga

You are invited to hear the issues of the campaign discussed by two able speakers at the Saratoga Grammar School auditorium on the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 8 o'clock. The gentlemen addressing the meeting are Hon. William Knowland, state senator from Alameda county, and Charles Spinks of Los Altos, Jeffersonian Democrat.

Both are eloquent speakers and will present in a convincing and capable manner the issues before the people at the coming election. There will be no charge for admission and it is hoped that a large number of citizens of Saratoga and vicinity will attend the meeting.

All the big cities have record or near-record registration totals, surpassing considerably the previous peak year of 1932. In Los Angeles, for example, there has been a gain of 95,916 registrations to the present total of 793,926. San Francisco's registration stands at 316,345 compared to the previous high record of 312,000 in 1934.

THERE GOES THE DINNER BELL

Funeral Is Held For Elic G. Lanz, Early Resident

Funeral services for Elic G. Lanz were conducted Monday by Garden City lodge, I. O. O. F. Mr. Lanz passed away last Thursday after an illness of a year. He was 76 at the time of his death.

Being one of the earlier residents of Campbell he was one of the organizers of the volunteer fire department, and was at one time president of the chamber of commerce.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Azalia Abbott and Frances Lanz, and two sisters. Interment was at Los Gatos cemetery. Pallbearers were A. W. Greathead and John Glucich of Garden City lodge, Obrion and Roy Kossich of Morning Light lodge, L. Genasci and Antone Ferro of the fire department.

Chest Drive On Here This Week

The solicitation campaign of the Campbell district community chest started this week. Solicitors have been receiving supplies and a hearty response is urged when the one working in your section calls upon you.

A year ago the Campbell district withdrew from the San Jose chest and so are collecting funds for local organizations only.

The relief council handles temporary cases of need, the library association allocates the funds collected for that widely used institution, and other budget items are for the Boy Scout and Camp Fire organizations and upkeep of the building.

All work of the community council leaders of organizations and chest solicitors is voluntary, done to promote the welfare of the people, old and young, residing in the territory served by the chest, Cambrian, Campbell, Hamilton, Meridian, Moreland, San Tomas, and a portion of Union districts.

Jacob Gatter Is Called by Death

Jacob Gatter, aged 74, passed away Friday after a short illness. He was a native of Bavaria, Germany, coming to California about 35 years ago.

He had lived in Campbell with his late wife, Christina, for the past ten years, most of which time his grandson, Willie Cline, lived with them.

Funeral services were held from Curry & Gripenstraw parlors and interment made at Oak Hill park. Grandsons Chris, Fred and Jack Gatter, Clarence, Norman and Melvin Nunes were pallbearers.

JOB WITH S. P.

Miles Standish has secured a position with the Southern Pacific company in San Jose, and is at present "learning the ropes" about the freight yards.

Campbell, Santa Clara Tie, First League Contest

By Don Martin

Coach Bert Chappell's promise that plenty of "fireworks" would be shown when Campbell met the Santa Clara Panthers on the gridiron was certainly fulfilled last Friday. The Panthers scored a touchdown early in the first quarter but failed to convert for the extra point. The local team outplayed the visitors throughout the game and showed marked improvement over previous exhibitions.

In the last quarter Campbell launched an aerial attack. Three forward passes were completed to Wilbur Meeks, Jack Sherman and Harry O'Hare. The sensational 60-yard march was climaxed by an off-tackle plunge to a touchdown by Fullback Frank Lovoi. Campbell also failed to convert, and the game ended 6-6.

Campbell will meet Mountain View there next Friday for the second league game of the season.

Mrs. Antoinette Mrak Funeral Is Held Saturday

Mrs. Antoinette Mrak, wife of Andrew Mrak, passed away last Friday, and her remains were laid to rest in Los Gatos cemetery, Saturday, following services from the Place funeral home in Los Gatos.

Mrs. Mrak was a native of Hungary, but had resided with her husband on a ranch off the Los Gatos highway, near the Almaden tracks, for the past 18 of her 60 years.

She leaves besides her husband, one son, Emil M. Mrak of Berkeley, and two sisters, Mrs. Bertha Sadalin of San Francisco, and Mrs. Anna Bill of New York.

Church Young People Prepare Program for 7th

What promises to be an evening of real entertainment is being prepared by the young people of the Congregational church for Saturday, Nov. 7, at 8 o'clock.

The two-act operetta, "Jan of Windmill Land" will be presented by a cast of 65. C. P. Klassen is directing the music and the Misses Hancie Naylor, Dorothy Merriman and Gladys Gibson, the dramatics.

Mrs. J. H. Bennett and Mrs. Margaret Wilson are in charge of the costuming, and no effort is being spared by any of these efficient leaders to make this event an outstanding production.

It will be staged in the grammar school auditorium at a very reasonable price, with special rates for children of grammar school age.

Anniversary of Club Formation Observed Here

"Happy birthday." That was the word in the air at Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday when the Campbell club celebrated its 10th anniversary since it received its charter. The club was organized in May, 1926, and the late Ralston Alison elected its first president.

T. A. Cutting, the second president, acted as program chairman and gave a very interesting history of the club's activities.

The past presidents, T. A. Cutting, Dr. W. I. Merrill, J. E. Wiesendanger, D. H. Cramer, Roy Archibald, Ralph Hyde, Ira Abbott, Guy Farley, George Burrow and Nick Hedegard, were present.

Charles Crooke, district governor, Bay Hayes, lieutenant governor, and Lieut.-Gov.-Elect Ira R. Abbott, gave short talks.

Alvin Long, who was president of the San Jose club which acted as sponsor for Campbell, gave a talk on the growth of the real Kiwanian and the "priceless ingredient" in the service a Kiwanis club and its members give to any community.

President Nick Hedegard failed to learn who are the new officers for 1937 but expressed his pleasure in working with this year's crew.

George Burrow treated the diners to some of his choice grapes as has been his custom for several years.

Attorney Henri Hill of San Jose will discuss the proposed amendments at next Tuesday's luncheon.

C. P. Klassen will be program chairman.

An intensive attendance campaign is on and members are urged to make it 100 per cent.

Miss Hazel Baker Honor Guest At Surprise Shower

Members of the Knife and Fork club were entertained Friday afternoon by Mrs. L. E. Eddlemon and Miss Shirley Eddlemon, when Miss Hazel Baker was the honored guest at an engagement shower.

Miss Baker, who will be married in the early part of November to Richard Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Robinson, was the recipient of a variety of lovely gifts.

Corsages of white carnations were presented to the guests, and the refreshment table was lovely with a bouquet of Cecil Bruenner roses and sweet peas.

Those participating in the happy occasion were Mesdames T. A. Robinson, Fred Coffin, James Burns, Mathew Burns, Robert Burns, Al Bulmore, Ed Hansen, Gayno Eddlemon, Warren Eddlemon, Henry Eddlemon, Miss Baker and the hostesses.

Los Gatos Judge Hears Trial of A. E. Pierce Tues.

Judge A. H. Bell of Los Gatos presided over the trial of A. E. Pierce which was held here Tuesday in the Odd Fellows building. Pierce was found guilty of battery and was sentenced to six months probation.

He originally pleaded guilty to the charge, but later changed his plea to not guilty and asked for a trial.

After the attack upon J. W. Brewer, grocer, living on Campbell avenue east of Dillon, Pierce went to Porterville where he was arrested and lodged in the county jail Sept. 28, where he remained until his trial.

DESERT VACATION

Walter Stray is enjoying a vacation in the desert belt of southern California while Miss Helen is visiting friends at Los Angeles. They expect to return home this weekend. Mrs. Stray, who has been at St. Helena for some time, is expected home soon.

Henri Hill Gives Fine Lecture On Books Here Mon.

Great interest was manifested by the Country Woman's club members gathered Monday to hear Henri G. Hill of San Jose in his talk on "Books and Book Selections for the Individual."

Starting on the basis that the individual had no books at all he named in the order of their importance the first four purchases that should be made, 1, Bible, 2, dictionary, 3, Book of Facts, 4, atlas. He recommended as the Book of Facts, "The World Almanac," the most comprehensive for the money.

By means of a chart he explained the Dewey decimal classification used by all libraries in their cataloguing and arrangement of books, and gave the percentage of books in each of the ten groups in a well selected library.

He also showed lists compiled by various notables of what were considered the best books, and then lists of the most popular fiction of various periods. An interesting comparison of the most popular fiction as noted in the magazine "Books" in the January and September issues shows the ephemeral nature of these books, as no name on the January list still appeared on the September one.

On the subject of "Current Events" Mr. Hill had prepared an outline in which periodicals were divided into four classes, dailies, weeklies, monthlies and permanent, with their subdivisions, with examples of each.

Mention was made of the booklet put out by the American Library association, "Reading With a Purpose" by which a reader may save time in the pursuit of knowledge or of reading worth while books.

The discussion was most informative and entertaining, more especially as helping to maintain and foster the Campbell library is the major purpose of the club.

Mr. Hill was introduced by Mrs. J. B. Strong, chairman, who also announced the musical program which had been arranged by Mrs. Emily P. Brandenburg. The opening selections were two delightful trios, "Two Guitars (a gypsy love song), and "Fairy Tales," played by the Misses Emily Bohnett, violin, Lois Bohnett, cello, and Mrs. Brandenburg, piano. Miss Emily, who is developing marked talent as a pianist, played "Waltz in E Minor" (Chopin) and "Prelude in C sharp Minor (Rachmaninof).

The committee of which Mrs. E. J. Bohnett and Mrs. R. W. Kennedy were also members had arranged most attractive bouquets of chrysanthemums, marigolds, cosmos, thitonia and double nasturtiums in the lovely yellow, orange and bronze colorings.

Mrs. R. H. Hyde presided during the business hour at which time the following named were elected to membership in the club: Mesdames W. D. Sturtevant, Emsley Whistler, Byron Walton, Soren N. Hedegard, Frank Shepard, J. W. Forward and R. B. Hummel.

A donation of $35 to the community chest was voted and a per capita donation of 16 cents per member to fulfill the club's quota to the student loan fund of the county federation was also agreed upon.

The yard committee reported the relaying of the broken sidewalk and the house committee repeated its request for rags to be used in the care of the rooms.

On Nov. 2 the annual "guest day" will be observed, at which time Miss Bernice Downing, who recently returned from an extensive European trip, will be the guest speaker. Members who plan to attend and bring a guest, are asked to notify the committee so that proper preparations may be made. They are Mesdames W. F. Grattan, H. M. Shadle, W. R. Morgan, T. M. Smiley and Miss Lillian Cassidy. This occasion is also being planned as a reception for Mrs. C. H. Whitman, who is visiting with relatives in San Jose and who was a welcome guest at Monday's meeting.

PLAN CARD PARTY

Mrs. F. A. Jacobsen and her committee are working hard on plans for the card party to be given by the Campbell grammar school P. T. A. Friday evening, Nov. 13.

Senator Borah Maintains Independent Attitude

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH of Idaho, whose attitude in the Presidential campaign is a matter of great interest to all parties, has declared he would confine his attention to state matters; but then, being irked by some criticism from Republicans he went further and said he was "going after the Republican party." The veteran said he had been accused of not being regular.

Senator Borah

"Well, what is a regular?" he asked. "A regular is a man with no ideas, who waits for someone to tell him what to do. My idea of being regular is in doing what you believe to be right in the interests of the people you represent.

"Let this be understood—I'm telling all parties, Republican, Democratic, Union—I'm going to advocate the things I believe in whether they cross party lines or not."

Pessimism Prevails at Last League Sessions

PESSIMISM and discontent marked the final session of the League of Nations assembly, the leaders admitting that little had been accomplished. Carlos Saavedra Lamas of Argentina, president of the assembly, even asked if he might not raise the question whether "civilization is on the verge of a final breakup."

The question of reforming the league covenant provoked a bitter controversy on whether nonmember states should be consulted. Russia was understood to be anxious particularly to bar German influence and achieved a minor triumph since no definite action to solicit nonmember co-operation was taken. A committee of twenty-eight was named to study reform proposals.

The assembly approved reports of its economic and disarmament committees. The economic report carried a British proposal to create a comission to study accessibility of raw materials. The United States and other nonmembers would be invited to participate. The report of the disarmament committee approved the reconvening of the world disarmament conference at an early date.

Disorders in Palestine Are Dropped by the Arabs

ARABS of Palestine, who had been on "strike" for 175 days in protest against unrestricted immigration of Jews, were persuaded by the British to call off the strike, which had been accompanied by great disorders and the killing of several hundred persons. The Arab high committee issued an appeal to Arabs throughout the country to return to work quietly, and this command was obeyed generally. Sir Arthur Wauchope, British high commissioner, was said to have informed the British government that it was now safe for the royal commission of investigation to begin its work of inquiring into the grievances of the Arabs.

According to a Hebrew newspaper of Jerusalem, the Arabs have arranged for backing by Italian Fascists for their aspirations. Also the Moslem authority administering Islamic church property is reported to be prepared to sell Catholics a Christian holy place on Mount Zion.

Austria Private Armies Forced to Dissolve

KURT SCHUSCHNIGG, chancellor of Austria, is taking his place among the European dictators. In order to consolidate military power in his own hands, he decreed the dissolution of all private armies, this being aimed especially at the Fascist Heimwehr headed by Prince Ernst von Starhemberg. The prince directed his followers to obey the edict, and Major Fey, Starhemberg's rival for control of the Heimwehr, called on the elements recognizing his leadership to preserve order.

Prince von Starhemberg.

The chancellor's order also affected his own Catholic storm troops. All the private troops were ordered consolidated with the Austrian state militia. This would increase Austria's official armed forces to about 158,000 men. The dissolution decree met strong opposition within the cabinet, and was voted after three ministers had walked out Schuschnigg's task now is to actually disarm the private armies. If he succeeds in doing this, his complete control over Austria may be conceded. It is recalled that the Heimwehr was ordered to disarm in 1931, that the government seized many weapons, and that a year later some 40,000 Heimwehr men appeared fully armed and uniformed. Von Starhemberg may not be really squelched this time, either. It is a certainty that he has a powerful friend in Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Typhoon in Philippines Kills Many Persons

ONE OF the worst typhoons in the history of the Philippines swept across Luzon island, killing scores of persons and destroying villages. At least 109 perished and the authorities feared the death list would be much larger for four hundred were reported missing. Eighty-two bodies were recovered from the city of Cabanatuan alone.

Waterway Money Allotted for Atlantic Coast

MEMBERS of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association, assembling in Trenton, N. J., for their annual convention, were informed by President Roosevelt that funds totaling $24,000,000 have been allotted for waterway improvements along the Atlantic coast during 1937. In a letter to President J. Hampton Moore of the association, to be read to the convention, Mr. Roosevelt also said:

"This year has been noteworthy in witnessing the completion of the 1,435 mile inside route of the intracoastal waterway from Trenton to Miami. Much credit for this accomplishment belongs to your association and it is to be congratulated therefor. Other waterway projects of permanent value to the nation sponsored by your organization have been completed or are progressing in a satisfactory manner."

John L. Lewis States Labor Peace Terms

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the A. F. of L., who had just been calling on President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., told the newspapermen that the prospects for peace between the warring factions in the federation were better and that those participating in the controversy were becoming "more temperate." However, that same evening John L. Lewis, the dynamic leader of the Committee for Industrial Organization, rather dashed the aforesaid prospects for peace. In Washington he laid down, as the only basis for restoration of peace in the ranks of organized labor, a program consisting of these two propositions:

J. L. Lewis

1. Revocation by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor of the order suspending ten C. I. O. unions on charges of insurrection.

2. Isolation of certain mass production industries which would be organized strictly on Lewis' "one big union" theory.

It had been stated that David Dubinsky, head of one of the suspended unions, had submitted a compromise peace proposal, but Lewis told the correspondents that he knew of no change in feeling between the battling factions; that he had made no move for peace and contemplated none; that the C. I. O. drive to unionize the steel industry was "proceeding satisfactorily" and that the Dubinsky proposal was similar to the one previously offered to and rejected by the A. F. of L. council.

Russia Angrily Warns Fascist Nations

HELP given the Spanish insurgents by Fascist countries so enraged soviet Russia that she gave notice that, unless it ceased she would free herself from any obligations to the agreement for neutrality. The representatives of the 27 nations on the international committee of non-intervention in the Spanish war were about to meet in London, and Moscow's challenge caused a real sensation. Moiseyvich Kagan, soviet delegate on the committee, specifically named Portugal, Italy and Germany as the offenders and called for an investigation. It is believed that if Russia is not satisfied in this matter she will send airplanes and other war material to the Spanish government.

The committee refused to take any action of the Russian complaint, averring that the charges were not specific enough.

Spanish Fascists pushed their lines so closely around Madrid that they called on the government to surrender the capital immediately and thus save it from a destructive bombardment. An airplane fleet showered the city with circulars telling the citizens that further resistance was useless. One of the most threatening of General Franco's advances was directed at Aranjuez, whose capture would cut off Madrid's food supply from the Mediterranean.

Swanson's Hint to Japan About Fortifications

AS THE time for the expiration of the Washington naval treaty draws nearer, the utterances of Secretary of the Navy Swanson take on more and more the nature of sharp warnings to Japan not to get too gay in the Pacific. In a press conference the other day he said:

"Fortifications are intended to answer fortifications. One menace must be met by another menace."

And he gave notice that the navy should be ready to do the necessary meeting.

About the same time the State department was studying a proposition, made to it and to Japan by Great Britain, for an extension of the treaty pledge of the three nations not to build new fortifications or naval bases in certain of their Pacific possessions.

Winant Shows Well in Franking Abuse Attack

ATTACKING abuse of the franking privilege, which has been practiced by followers of any and all parties when they got the chance, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan proposes that congress pass legislation that will put a stop to this evil, "for the sake upon the one hand of the postal revenue and for the sake, on the other, of political fair play."

J. G. Winant

When John G. Winant resigned from the social security board, his letter to the President was a strong pro-New Deal document. It was printed by the press bureau of the social security board and franked to a large mailing list, and Senator Vandenberg asked Mr. Winant whether he thought that was a legitimate use of the franking privilege. Mr. Winant replied promptly that, lest there be any question of the propriety of the matter, he had paid the mailing costs. This attitude was warmly commended by Senator Vandenberg, as it must be by all good citizens.

Finds Private Debt Load Is Not Excessive

BASING its conclusions on a study covering the period from 1900 to 1935, the National Industrial Conference board finds that there is no evidence to support the theory that the burden of private debt upon business is excessive. Statements that private debt is "absorbing wealth" or is showing a changed and unfavorable relationship to wealth, or that the depression was precipitated by an excessive debt burden are without factual basis, the board reported.

Interest charges have not outrun the capacity to pay them, according to the board's study, which showed that the rates of growth of private long term debt and of interest charges from 1900 to 1935 were similar to those of national wealth and national income.

Since 1930 private long term debt has tended to decline. Only the public utilities have increased the amount of their outstanding debt. But the board points out that no debt problem exists in the public utility field as a whole and that expansion of the electric light and power utilities has been on a sound basis, with the industry in a safe position to meet interest charges.

The steam railroads, taken as a whole, are neither overcapitalized nor overburdened with debt, the board concludes.

Court Opens Way for Security Act Test

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE C. B. KENNEMER of Montgomery, Ala., issued an order halting collection in Alabama of a one per cent payroll tax to finance the unemployment program. The result, it is expected, will be a clear cut test of the validity of the New Deal's social security act, for lawyers had no doubt the case would be carried to the United States Supreme court. The order was granted the Gulf State Steel corporation of Gadsden, Ala., on a plea that the unemployment insurance program, operated in co-operation with the federal government, violates both state and federal constitutions.

Karl Radek Is Latest Accused in Russia

ACCUSED of complicity in the plot against Dictator Stalin for which 16 prominent Russians were executed in August, Karl Radek, brilliant journalist, is under arrest and in danger of losing his life. He disappeared just after the executions of the others, but was caught a few days ago.

In his last article, published in the official newspaper Izvestia, Radek confessed his unfaithfulness to the Communist party, but defended himself with a vitriolic attack on Trotzky and claimed he had "expiated" his sins by foiling Trotzky's attempted sabotage of the Stalin regime.

Swedish Aviator Fails in Stockholm Flight

KURT BJORKVALL, Swedish aviator, made an attempt to fly alone from New York to Stockholm. Thirty-two hours after the start he was picked up from the ocean about one hundred miles off the coast of Ireland. Supposedly he had run short of fuel. The rescue was made by a French trawler. The plane was badly damaged and was abandoned.

Six Men, Six Views

Washington.—Some time ago I reported in these columns that Mr. Roosevelt had sent a commission to Europe to study consumer co-operatives. I said at that time that the commission was likely to find itself unable to reach an agreement concerning a report to the President on the consumer co-operatives and that in the event they were able to reach an agreement, the publication of their findings would be delayed until after the election.

The commission has returned to this country and has gone through its labor pains to the end that there are six different views, an opinion by each of the six different commissioners concerning the value or lack of it that consumer co-operatives have.

But it is important to know developments concerning this commission because it appears that by engaging in an investigation of the consumer co-operatives, the President has awakened a number of different interests in our own country to the fact that there are some kinds of co-operatives which are not helpful. The fuss stirred up by failure of the six commissioners to reach an agreement makes it seem unlikely that there will be any unanimity of opinion in congress if and when Mr. Roosevelt attempts to gain action in a legislative way to encourage creation of these co-operatives. In other words, if a move is made in congress, or if the Chief Executive attempts to force congress to enact legislation favorable to consumer co-operatives, we are likely to see a vigorous legislative battle. Personally, I hope that happens. Unless that end materializes, there is every likelihood that the average person who has not access to full information will be inclined to favor consumer co-operatives, without realizing he is lending his influence, whatever it may be, to fostering institutions that in the end are certain to cause heartaches and financial losses.

I am in a position to say that the one thing upon which the President's commissioners were able to agree was that consumer co-operatives in Europe constitute the focal point for radicalism. Not a single consumer co-operative was found, I am told, that was not controlled, managed or inspired by radicals of one breed or another, mainly, communists. These hotbeds of radicalism constitute "pressure groups" that have been able to impress governments in the various countries of an ability and an influence that do not actually exist with them. That is to say, these groups, like minority groups everywhere, are cohesively organized and they are vocal, in addition. The result is they have been able to force upon peoples in many countries restrictions over private and independent initiative, or to gain for themselves exemptions and privileges not accorded to others. The result is an obvious alignment of peoples into fresh factions, the tendencies of which are dangerous.

Tugwell's Activities

It may be news to many persons that we have consumer co-operatives in this country and that these agencies or units already are being fostered by the United States government. I refer to the activities of Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell, who has installed in the resettlement colonies various and sundry consumer co-operatives. It may be news as well to many to learn that Mr. Tugwell has spent almost two million dollars in financing these co-operatives to get them started. And the third bit of news respecting this circumstance is that a book written by James Peter Warbasse is being used as a guide for the creation of these consumer co-operatives in federal resettlement projects.

Now, the name of James Peter Warbasse may not seem important. Many persons have written books, but there are not many volumes extant in the United States that advocate changes in the form of our government. Yet, there are propositions in the volume to which I have referred which do just that and these books, as I have said, are serving more or less as a guide for the people whom Professor Tugwell has "resettled."

With this brief presentation of the facts, it seems to me it does not take much imagination to see the basis upon which the promoters of the consumer co-operatives are building their structure in this country. Taking these facts into consideration with the information brought back by those who made the study for Mr. Roosevelt, it is made to appear at least that a foreign link is somehow or other being forged, and that link, I believe, is designed as a fundamental unit in the general radical program to change the form of our government as well as the form of our national life. I can arrive at no other conclusion.

There is still another phase of this general proposition of consumer co-operatives that ought to be of interest to every producer in this country. Let us assume, for example, that they were perfect in organization and management; that they prospered and expanded in numbers and that they were rendering genuine service to the people. If that condition were to obtain, does it not occur as a natural question that with so much strength, the consumer co-operatives would eventually establish a class alignment between producer and consumer? It seems to me that the natural course of events would lead to this end, and if it did lead to this end I am afraid that because there are more consumers than there are producers, the producers would get the dirty end of the deal. They would be short-changed because they would be outnumbered.

Another Phase

This phase seems the more important because the food stores, food fields generally, are the sectors in which these consumer co-operatives operate best. As a matter of fact, the food field is the most fertile field for experiments anyway and here is quite apparently another experiment that has fastened, or is fastening itself as a parasite upon the agricultural industry of this country.

I know there has been some argument that the consumer co-operatives are the answer to the effort to destroy chain stores. That is not so. Chain stores in foreign countries have licked the co-operatives. They have virtually destroyed them where the co-operatives attempted to drive the chain stores out of business. It becomes important then to recognize that while the United States has many chain stores, it has not now and never will have as many chain stores as it has independents.

Again, here is a threat to independent business men, particularly to the small shop owner, whether he be in a large city or in the thousands of small towns and villages where the owners of such stores are important to their communities and pillars of strength in our national society. If the consumer co-operatives get going, I predict a further decline in the number of independent merchandise houses throughout the United States. For that reason, if for none of the others that I have outlined, it does seem important that the consumer co-operatives move in this country should be stopped in its tracks and that those responsible in an official way for encouraging this sort of thing should be shorn of power.

Then There's Beer

It may seem a far cry from the farm field to the price of beer as a working man finds it, but there is a direct connection and recent developments again demonstrate the fact that our whole economic structure is quite closely related. There is an increase coming in the price of beer. Either the working man and others who like beer are going to pay more for it, or else they will get a smaller glass. The answer is that ingredients entering into the production of beer have increased in price to such an extent that, according to official figures, the brewers are now paying about $1.50 more for the things that enter into the production of one barrel of beer than they did when the sale of beer again was legalized.

This circumstance is significant for the reason that it shows conclusively how tampering with the currency upsets the general balance within our economic structure and results sometimes in displacement of markets and sometimes in diminution of sales. In the case of beer it probably will resul in a displacement of markets, rather than any decline in the amount of beer consumed, despite the fact that the ultimate consumer will be paying more.

This condition is of interest to agriculture generally because it has always been contended by the proponents of open sale of beer and whiskey that a substantial new outlet for farm crops was made available by the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. Rather, it was a restoration of an old outlet that existed before the Eighteenth amendment was adopted. But there has been a combination of circumstances, largely the result of governmental messing, that has mitigated against the farmers obtaining full benefit from repeal. These may be enumerated as follows: Devaluation of the dollar, crop restriction under the Agricultural Adjustment act, higher taxes, and a tendency on the part of the Roosevelt administration to increase imports from abroad.

In the case of the devaluation of the currency, the main purpose, as announced by the Roosevelt administration, was to increase prices. It has had that effect and has made the brewers pay more for the hops they must import from abroad and they must import hops because our own production is insufficient.

Butte Fire Loss $172,896

Chico.—Miles H. Young, state forest ranger in Butte County, estimated the forest fire losses in Butte County during the month of September at $172,896.10. The fires, most of them believed to have been incendiary, burned over 51,265 1-3 acres. More than twenty families lost their homes in the conflagrations, which razed barns, sheds and garages and killed considerable livestock.

Church Has Own Bathing Beach

Santa Barbara.—The First Presbyterian Church of Santa Barbara is the first church in America, it is believed, to have its own bathing beach and cottage for the use of parishioners and Sunday school pupils. The beach property on Dos Pueblos Ranch, fifteen miles north of the city has been granted the church by the owner for as long a term as the organization may find use for it.

Urge Federal Tourists Bureau

Crescent City.—Establishment of a federal bureau of tourists information was urged by Congressman F. Lea of California at the convention of the Redwood Empire Association here. Lea declared the $5,000,000,000 expended annually by tourists in the United States "justifies a division of tourist information in the department of commerce."

S. F. Rated Sunniest City

San Francisco. — San Francisco was America's sunniest city in September, according to reports from the U. S. Weather Bureau received by the San Francisco Climate Survey Commission. September sunshine was 85 per cent for San Francisco compared to its normal for the month of 71 per cent. Total hours of sunshine for September shows San Francisco with 317.7 hours.

25-Year-Old Goose Dies

Woodland.—Members of the Henry Kaupke family near here are mourning the death of Quack, a pet wild goose, which had been on the farm for a quarter of a century. Quack, who died of old age, was shot in the wing by Kaupke twenty-five years ago. The farmer carried the crippled goose home and under the family's care it became a barnyard pet.

Release Hundreds of Game Birds

Porterville.—The Porterville Fish and Game Protective Association has liberated 640 quail and 400 pheasants from the rearing pens here. Still in the pens are 80 Chukar partridges which will be freed after close of the hunting season, January 1. The Chukar is a hardy bird, imported from India.

Railroad Places Big Order

San Francisco.—Orders for $3,410,000 worth of steel have been placed by the Southern Pacific Company. Part of the huge purchase will be used to prepare 253 miles of coast line track for the new streamline trains to go into service between San Francisco and Los Angeles after January 1.

Trinity Coal To Be Mined

Weaverville.—What is claimed by its owners to be the largest coal ledge in California is being developed at Blanchard Flat near here. W. B. Dyer, United States engineer, who recently visited the mine, and who is said to be an authority on oil, coal, sodium and phosphate deposits, declared the ore is of good quality and carries little ash.

Champion Commuter Dies

San Jose. — Death has claimed Nicholas L. Spinetti, 69, "world champion commuter." When he retired a short time ago, Spinetti claimed he had traveled a distance of 1,348,236 miles, or the equivalent of 56 times around the world, during 48 years of commuting to San Francisco and back.

City To Build Oldsters' Club

Montebello.—The city council is completing plans for erection of a clubhouse in the Municipal Park for the retired men of the community. The clubhouse, when finished, will be open every day for the enjoyment of oldsters who enjoy meeting together for checkers or conversation. There will be no dues.

Olive Picking In Full Swing

Picking of olives is under full swing in the Lindsay district, with nearly 500 persons employed in two local olive canneries. The Lindsay Ripe Olive Company plant, declared the largest in the world, expects to employ 400 persons for the next two weeks, while the V. R. Smith Olive Company plant will have a force of sixty for some weeks. Hundreds of workers will be employed several weeks picking olives.

Imperial Hay Crop Exceeds Million

An all-time record for hay shipments from Imperial Valley totaled more than $1,000,000 for the last five months, according to J. B. Norton for the county agricultural office. The hay was shipped entirely by truck and totaled 116,504 tons. At an average of $10 a ton, it represented a value of $1,116,504. During the same five months in 1935 there were 71,031 tons shipped.

Tulare's Farm Wealth

Agricultural and livestock products exported by Tulare County in 1935 totaled $26,428,000, according to the Tulare County Board of Trade. Citrus, cotton and cattle led the valuation. Citrus brought returns of $6,061,957, cotton $4,066,761, and cattle $2,896,560. Farm Adviser William Gilfillan expects returns this years to gross $30,000,000.

To Open Bids on Levee Work

Bids for new levee construction on the Sacramento River near Colusa will be opened in the office of the United States district engineer in Sacramento on November 2. It is planed to construct new levees at two locations on the river south of Colusa. At present several construction projects are under way north of Colusa.

Orange Packing Plant Expands

In preparation for the orange harvest, new equipment is being installed at the Richgrove-Jasmine Citrus Association plant. During the last year growers were paid a packing refund of $4513. A further refund of $9510 is to be paid on last year's operations, despite a below normal crop.

Grape Marketing Begun

Emperor grapes are moving to market from the Exeter district. Early shipments have been confined to domestic markets, growers awaiting coloring of the fruit for widespread harvest. Grapes are of an excellent quality, but only a 75 to 80 per cent normal crop is anticipated.

State Grows Half Nation's Peaches

California produces nearly half the nation's crop of peaches this year with an estimated yield of 21,224,000 bushels, as compared with last year's 17,876,000 bushel crop. The estimated total for the United States this year is 45,715,000 bushels.

Fire Victims Get Aid

Farmers burned out in recent forest fires in Yuba, Nevada and Butte Counties will receive a $10,000 allotment from the Resettlement Administration, Jonathan Garst, regional director, announced.

Million Gallons of Oil Stored

More than 1,000,000 gallons of orchard heater oil has been placed in storage at Upland. When frost threatens the thousands of acres of citrus property, growers will be prepared to turn on the heat.

Big Rice Crop

Delayed harvesting aided the California rice crop, and an increase of 2,350,000 bushels over 1935 was noted. California's rice harvest is 9,075,000 bushels, one-fifth of the United States yield.

Funds Doubled for Fruit Growers

Revolving funds for two years, totaling some $25,000 will be paid to growers of the Redlands Co-operative Fruit Association at the end of this business year, Manager Walter G. Hentschke announced.

Orange Crop Estimated

California will produce over 33,000,000 boxes of oranges this year, not including Valencias, yield of which cannot be estimated until December. The State will hold its own in grapefruit production.

State Grange at Eureka

Two thousand members of the California State Grange gathered in Eureka October 20 for the annual State convention. The session ends October 24.

Pickers Remain in Tulare Region

With the second picking of Tulare County's cotton crop promising to be heavier than the first, transients who moved in at opening of the season probably will remain until the end of the harvest, instead of going on to other cotton areas.

Huge Sugar Beet Crop

The estimated California sugar beet crop of 1,859,000 tons is one of the largest in history, and is 1,333,000 tons more than was produced in 1935.

VOTE!!!

The greatest posession of a free people is the ballot—the right to vote. It is a defender of our liberties and a weapon against injustice.

Yet that invaluable heritage is not prized by millions of otherwise good citizens. Proof of this statement can be found in undeniable statistics. In most elections, less than half of the persons who are entitled to vote do so. It is exceptional when an election brings to the voting booths more than 50 per cent of enfranchised citizens.

One result is that public officials are elected by minorities —the vote of the majority is silent. Another, and worse result, is a flagging of interest by the people in a thing which vitally affects us all—our government.

This year, there are great issues before us. No matter where we may stand, it is our duty as well as our privilege to mark an X opposite names of our choice on the ballot. Only by doing that, can we have popular government.

In Germany the rite to vote has been virtually abrogated—at the last election citizens had a choice of endorsing Hitler or of leaving the ballot blank, there being no opposition. That is true of Italy, Russia, Greece, and a dozen other powers. And here in America, where we still have that right which preserves our freedom, half of us don't trouble to exercise it.

So—vote on Nov. 3. Vote for Roosevelt, Landon, Lemke, Thomas—whoever you believe is the best man for President. Do the same for other offices. It is your inalienable right to vote for whomever you please. And only by voting on the men and issues of the time, can that right be preserved.

We once knew a man who was too stingy to take the newspaper in his home town and always sent over to borrow his neighbor's paper.

One evening he sent his son over to borrow the paper and while his son was on his way he ran into a large swarm of bees and in a few minutes his face looked like a summer squash.

Hearing the agonized cries of his son, the father ran to his assistance, and in doing so ran into a barbed wire fence, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a $4 pair of pants.

The old cow took advantage of the hole in the fence, got into the corn field and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, the farmer's wife ran out of the house, upsetting a four-gallon churn full of cream into a basket of kittens and killed the whole flock. She slipped on the cream and fell downstairs, breaking her leg and a $19 set of false teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the cream into the parlor and ruined a $40 carpet. During the excitement, the daughter eloped with the hired man and took all the family's savings with her.

The moral is that every man should be a subscriber to his home paper—The Tunkhannock (Penn.) Republican and New Age.

DEMOCRATS

The future of our party is at stake. President Roosevelt has wrecked the finest platform ever drawn up by the Democratic Party. He has repudiated its pledges and has forgotten its name. He and his advisers boast they are "New Dealers," not Democrats. Roosevelt has abandoned you and your party as lightly as he would like to abandon the Constitution which he swore to restore and uphold. For your party's sake you should

VOTE

to repudiate the wreckers of Democratic principles of government. Wreckers who take their advice from pink-tinged Tugwells, Frankfurters, Dubinskys and Hillmans. Wreckers who advise the President who recently wrote urging a Congressional committee to ignore the Constitution. Wreckers who are taking your money and throwing it recklessly around. Wreckers who, ignoring the platform Roosevelt said he would support 100% the doctrines of Stalin which they have embraced, have long delayed recovery in this country. Yet from March 4, 1933, to June 30, 1936, the fabulous sum of $25,000,000,000 has been squandered while eleven million are still unemployed. Hundreds of the foremost leaders of the Democratic Party have "taken a walk" in protest. They believe their action shows loyalty to the Democratic Party rather than disloyalty, since they will be voting November 3 for and its age-enduring institutions and liberty. The Democratic Party will be a thing of the past if Roosevelt and his "New Dealers" are re-elected. You cannot continue to spend $2 for every $1 you take in without soon facing disaster. The future of the Democratic Party may be preserved and rescued from the wreckage only by repudiating those who have repudiated you. Party loyalty demands you defeat the un-American profligates in Washington by voting for Landon and Knox and candidates for Congress who will support these nominees.

FOR

IT'S A NEW TAX ON YOUR FOOD

..and other necessities

They call Proposition #22 a "Retail Store License" to hide the fact that you will pay it

IT IS CLEVERLY NAMED to look like something else. But no one denies that its main purpose is to raise retail prices —to increase the cost of living for Californians who can least afford it!

When read carelessly, Proposition #22 sounds innocent enough. It taxes an individual store $1.00 a year for the right to do business. But it taxes chain stores $500.00 for each store over nine.

But, says the U. S. Federal Trade Commission:

"If the ability to undersell, based on greater efficiency or on elimination of credit and delivery cost, is destroyed by taxation, it is the consuming public which will really pay the tax and not the chain."

For chain stores operate on a small profit. They eliminate middlemen's profits and unnecessary in-between expense. The savings they make by operating efficiently are passed on to you in prices 10% below the average. The Harvard (University) School of Business Research states these to be the facts.

The tax is greater than the profit of four out of five chain stores. Thus some of them will be forced to close—allowing their competitors to raise prices.

Surviving chains will be forced to raise their prices to pay the "license."

In either case—you will foot the bill.

Admittedly not for revenue purposes, the tax is a cleverly masked attempt to subsidize the middleman and wasteful business methods—at your expense.

If you think that chain store competition helps to keep all prices reasonable—if you believe that taxes are high enough already, particularly on foods —vote NO and keep prices low.

For no matter what they call it...no matter how they try to conceal it...22 is a tax on you—VOTE NO!

22 IS A TAX ON YOU—VOTE NO!

22	RETAIL STORE LICENSE Referendum against act of Legislature (Chapter 849, Statutes 1935) requiring every person or organization owning, operating or controlling one or more stores, wherein merchandise is sold at retail, obtain annual State license; prescribing fifty cents application fee for each store and one dollar license fee for one store, increasing license fee progressively for second and additional stores to five hundred dollars for each store over nine; excepts filling stations, ice distributing establishments, restaurant facilities of common carriers, newspaper offices, stores wherein sales are incidental to rendering personal service, theatres and motion picture houses. CALIFORNIA CONSUMERS CONFERENCE

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

Thrift and debt are incompatible!

It took the depression, with all its attendant hardships and bitter disappointments, to re-establish the soundness of that simple truth in the minds of the American people.

But there are increasing and reassuring indications that the lesson has been learned.

American agriculture, for example, is making substantial headway in paying off the huge indebtedness which has sapped and undermined the farming industry—despite the fact that the average farmer, during the last few years, has been fighting for his very existence, with his income at the lowest ebb in decades.

In 1928, prior to the "crash," with boom conditions—at least in the cities—encouraging extravagance and obscuring the need of thrift, the farm mortgage debt in the United States totaled $9,500,000,000!

In 1936, with farm recovery still far from complete, but with virtually every farmer stripped for action and determined to climb back to solid ground, the debt has been reduced to $7,500,000,000!

Part of the credit for that remarkable accomplishment, in the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles, should rightfully go to the farm credit administration and the other agencies which have been of tremendous assistance in helping the farmer put his house in order. But the major share of the credit, even making allowance for federal aid, should go to the individual farmer who has been willing to make every possible sacrifice to save his land and re-establish his business on a sound basis.

The job of re-financing agricultural debts has been a colossal undertaking, both from the standpoint of the farmer and the government.

Since its creation three years ago, the farm credit administration has loaned more than $3,704,000,000—making total farm mortgage loans aggregating $2,043,000,000; short-term production loans of $1,349,000,000, and loans to farmers' marketing and purchasing cooperatives totaling $312,000,000.

The average mortgage loan per farmer was about $4,000 and the average short-term loan from production credit associations about $740.

But of even greater significance is the fact that the 12 federal land banks have been able to offer an all-time low interest rate of 4 per cent on long-term amortized loans.

"In three years," reports Gov. W. I. Myers of the farm credit administration, "we have been able to directly reduce the interest rates on one in every three mortgaged farms. Out of every three dollars the average farmer paid on interest before refinancing, he now pays only two; the other dollar stays in his own pocket."

And reflecting the immediate benefits of the farm debt readjustment program, as well as the general improvement in conditions, Governor Myers reports that the index price for farm products has more than doubled since February, 1933; that gross farm income has increased nearly three billion since 1932, and that the farm real estate market has been increasingly active, with advancing prices.

Lower farm overhead, due, in part, to reduced indebtedness and lower interest charges, has been a major factor in the improved farm outlook.

If the farming industry, by dint of hard work, personal sacrifice and careful management, is eventually successful in reducing farm indebtedness to normal proportions, it is safe to say that agriculture will be able to cope with most of its other problems both successfully and expeditiously. Interest and payments on principal, in times past, have been the two items in the farmer's budget which defied reduction in times of stress and forced retrenchment.

LIGHTWEIGHTS TROUNCE SAN JOSE TECH

The local 110 and 120 teams defeated San Jose Tech lightweights in two exciting contests last Friday evening. The 110 squad beat their opponents by a score of 16 to 12. Paul Borg was high point man, scoring 7 points. Charles Silcott and Al Uclujama also scored. The 120's won 26-14. George Kurasaki starred in this game with 14 points ot his credit. Mitchell Lobrovich scored 8 and John Kawachi 4.

The 110 and 120 teams will meet Live Oak here tomorrow evening at 7:30. The 110 line-up will be as follows: Charles Silcott and Al Uclujama, forwards; Paul Borg, center, and John Takayanagi and Donald O'Hare, guards. The 120's will open with John Kawachi and Mitchell Lobrovich in the forward positions, George Kurasaki at center, and Bob Shannon and Leo Raische, guards. The 120's are expected to be strengthened by the return of Bert Robinson, who made a name for himself on the 110 squad last year.

SCHOOL DANCE SUCCESS

The Hallowe'en dance held by the student body after the basketball game last Friday evening was a decided success. Many faculty members as well as students were seen enjoying themselves. Refreshments were served during intermissions.

Members of the student body joined in community singing at the organization meeting last Tuesday. Songs were led by C. P. Klassen, vocal instructor.

SCHOOL PAPER ISSUED

The first edition of the school paper was distributed yesterday. It was received enthusiastically by the students, and the next issue is looked forward to. Those on the staff are Francis Miller, editor; Armand Green, Tom Bohnett, Stanley Shelley, Elizabeth Miller, Virginia Binder, Blanche Lopes and Ardus Hoerler.

CARD PARTY SCHEDULED

A whist and bridge party is going to be held by the Girls' league on Nov. 6. Refreshments will be served and prizes offered. The affair will be given in the school annex, with an admission price of 35 cents. Tickets may be secured from any member of the Girls' league.

HISTORY CLASS VISITS MUSEUM

An educational and entertaining trip to be held by the Girls' league on Nov. 6. Refreshments will be served and prizes offered. The affair will be given in the school annex, with an admission price of 35 cents. Tickets may be secured from any member of the Girls' league.

LOW FRESHMAN GROUP ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. Lillian Rae's low freshman home room elected the following officers at its meeting last Thursday: Frank Belick, president; Florence Benevento, vice president; Nora Brydon, secretary; Joe Benevento, treasurer, and Andy Desin, reporter.

No Political Assessments

An old established custom on the part of both parties in Kansas was an assessment of five per cent on office-holders for campaign purposes. One of the first acts of Landon as governor of the state was the outlawing of any assessment on any office-holder.

THESE PEOPLE KNOW

ALONZO L. BAKER

Here are just three of the many fine expressions regarding Alonzo L. Baker by his home-town neighbors of Mt. View:

Alonzo L. Baker

MRS. DAN BURKE

S. F. DISTRICT, FEDERATED WOMEN'S CLUBS:

"Alonzo Baker is a fine, upright young man, one who has never betrayed a trust, and who has been willing to give of his time and talents to every good cause. His family life is ideal. He has a host of friends here and throughout the County because he is a friend. Having many responsibilities and duties of his own to perform, he always seems to have time to be helpful and cooperative in civic and community affairs. Being a member of the Catholic church of Mountain View myself, I have always appreciated his charitable and broadminded attitude toward my faith and all faiths. To my mind, Alonzo Baker is a true American in every sense of the word, and what more can one say of any man?"

WILLIAM P. WRIGHT

HIGHLY RESPECTED BUSINESS MAN:

"It has been my privilege and pleasure to know Alonzo L. Baker for 15 years. In that time he has proved himself to be a good, progressive citizen. He is well-read, tolerant, broadminded, and, in my judgment, would represent the people of the Eighth Congressional District in a manner that would be a credit to himself and most satisfactory to the citizens as a whole."

UGO MANCINI

AUTOMOBILE DEALER, LEADER IN ITALIAN AFFAIRS

"For many years I have been privileged to know Alonzo Baker. He has always been ready to give his time and service to community affairs, and is a highly respected leader in all worthy civic projects. We business men are indebted to him for his two terms as president of the Chamber of Commerce, and for his help in the movement to get the United States Navy to establish its big air base near here. We Italian people have always found Mr. Baker to be one of our best friends. We remember with gratitude the generous offer that he and other men of his company made to us Catholics when St. Joseph's Church burned a few years ago. They invited us to use their auditorium as our place of worship free of charge until our new church could be built. The people of Mountain View are proud of Alonzo Baker, and can recommend him without any reservation whatever as a man of fine character, exceptional ability, broad outlook, and friendly to all classes, creeds and races."

After a painful night, Jane rose early to go again into town. In the yard she encountered McCrossen.

"Ridin' out?" he asked.

"I am."

"I'll saddle up for you."

"Have the horses been fed?"

"Yep."

"I'll saddle up myself."

"Your father rode over to the pastures with Page this mornin'," volunteered McCrossen, walking alongside Jane. She made no answer; indeed, she rather quickened her pace; her companion stepping up his own.

"Your father left word I was to ride out with you, if you went off the ranch."

"I don't need anybody to ride out with me."

"I don't care a rap what the old man says. I'll ride out with you if you want me. If you don't, say so."

"I don't."

"O. K."

Jane undertook to mount.

"Look here, girlie!" said McCrossen suddenly. "Why don't you like me?" Without further preface than a laugh he caught her in his arms. "I'll do anythin' to please you."

Jane, struggling angrily, stood pinned. He laughed immoderately at her efforts to tear herself away. She rained blows on him with her fists. "Let me go!" she panted. "I hate you."

Still laughing, he tried to talk down her anger. She got away from him. "Hate me as much as you like, Janie, but I'm goin' to have you. I'll kill any man that tries to take you away from me," he continued coolly.

Panting, and furious with anger and fear, she got into her hand the riding whip dangling from her wrist and lashed him across the face and head.

As she dashed away, McCrossen drew paper and tobacco from his pocket, rolled a cigarette, and licking the paper's edge as he looked after Jane riding toward Denison's ranch, struck a match, lighted up, and started for the bunkhouse.

Jane, her heart beating tumultuously, galloped swiftly along the trail, completely upset by McCrossen's bullying and the worry in her breast.

Instead of heading first for town, she rode over to Denison's ranch.

The sight of the ranch-house ruins was a shock, even though she tried to steel herself against it. A man down near the corral was leading one of Denison's horses to the barn.

"Are you Ben Page?" asked Jane abruptly.

"Yes'm."

"How did this happen, Ben?" she asked sympathetically.

"You tell," he returned sullenly.

"Tell me all about it, Ben. I'm from Gunlock and a friend of Bill's."

He regarded her with suspicion. "Must be the only one he's got over there," he growled.

Jane swallowed. "I hope it isn't as bad as that," she exclaimed. "What caused this dreadful fire, Ben?"

"How the hell should I know?"

"Don't know what caused the fire, eh? Well, you ought to at least know how to be civil to a lady. Since you don't, I advise you to come over and take a lesson from your brother Bull." Jane galloped swiftly away, more than ever upset mentally. Once in town, she sought Dr. Carpy.

She encountered him in the street. They walked together back to his office.

"How are you, Jane?" asked the doctor.

"I just rode in from Bill's. He has Ben Page there looking after things, and the insolent blockhead wouldn't even answer me civilly when I tried to find out how it happened—so I rode away into town."

"That fire has stirred Bill up terribly—out of all proportion to its importance. It maybe was done to annoy him."

Jane looked frightened. "Why, doctor! What do you mean? Do you believe the ranch house was set on fire?"

Carpy was taken aback. He had said more than he meant to. "Why, no one can tell for sure about that, of course. Some drunken Indian might have set it afire."

"To annoy Bill?" asked Jane incredulously.

"You can't tell," persisted the doctor, gathering courage as he proceeded.

"How is he coming on, doctor?"

"All right, so far. It'll take time to tell the story, Jane, just's I said."

"Could I see him this morning, do you think?"

"If it was anybody else on earth, the answer would be no. If you go over, don't stay long, and tell Sister Virginia it's O.K. with me—back here at twelve to take lunch with me—promise?"

"I promise."

"And remember"—Carpy raised the forefinger of his right hand—"mum's the word."

The utter absence of authentic details concerning the cause of the fire called for a more active effort on the part of the imagination; and this in turn indicated its stimulation at Jake Spotts' bar. So the old guard were gathered on this morning still discussing the "outrage."

Among those grouped at the inner end of Spotts' long bar were three veterans of the frontier. Henry Sawdy, calm, portly, pulled reflectively at his long-horned mustachios and fingered his well-filled glass without raising it to his lips. John Lefever, likewise full-bodied as old port, whistling "sotto vokey," as Sawdy described it, twirled his glass and listened for the next fire theory offered by Jim McAlpin, the thin, nervous, weather-beaten-faced liveryman.

Toward this trio there now sauntered Bill Pardaloe.

"What's the last news, boys?" he asked in a general appeal.

"Just like the first and that's nothin' at all," said McAlpin. "Give me the same, Oscar, with more bitters. Hold on, boys! By the Lord, if I'm alive, there comes Ben Page now."

"Hey! Ben! This way," cried Sawdy as the stumpy bowlegged cowman walked down the barroom towards them. "Come along and wet up."

"Well, Ben," demanded Sawdy, when the glasses were set down, "what about the fire?"

"I jumped through the window."

The longer the group tarried the more resentful they grew at the thought of Bill Denison's being burned out. It was at last decided to let Sawdy and Pardaloe ride to Denison's together to make an "official investigation." They took the Reservation trail and halfway out met Bob Scott riding into town.

The two adventurers halted Bob, explained their errand, and asked him to join them.

Scott wheeled his horse around, and the three galloped for Denison's ranch.

That night, late, Sawdy, Lefever, McAlpin, Pardaloe, and Ben Page met.

"Boys," began Sawdy, gravely, when the doors were carefully shut and outer approaches examined, 'it's just's we figured—dirty work out at Bill's ranch. It was lucky Pardaloe and I picked up Bob Scott. He's magic on trailin'. If it hadn't been for Bob, Pardaloe and me'd been scratchin' around Bill's place yet. There wasn't a thing to show where or how the fire started—the job was too well done. But what couldn't be covered up was the ground sign in the yard. Who'd been there last? Lucky for us, there wa'n't many horses'd been runnin' around the yard. Bob spotted three; one was Music, Bill's horse—Ben's been ridin' her. The other two were Gunlock horses, boys. One that Jane rides—that was fresh track. But there was older track—of a Gunlock horse."

"Gunlock horse?" echoed Lefever.

In the murky light of the lantern Sawdy pulled his mustachio deliberately. "A Gunlock horse," he repeated. "And it was the sorrel gelding that most of you've seen. Bob knows every horse in the hills by his hoofs, and as luck would have it, he himself traded the sorrel to McCrossen about a year ago.

"That horse was over to Bill's place maybe thirty-six to forty-eight hours before Scott read the sign. The man that rode that horse over to Denison's night before last knows a lot about who started that fire. Who rode it?

"That horse, boys, has been rode by Barney Rebstock since he's roosted over at Gunlock with his old pal and boss, Gus Van Tambel. After Bob fixed on the sorrel, Pardaloe sends him up around by Gunlock to scout the question, who rides the sorrel. Then Pardaloe and I rode straight back to town to send out Carpy. You see, Bob could appear up at Gunlock casual-like and ask questions and nobody would think anythin' about it. Bob rides in and out there often.

"Of course, he had to be careful. But there's two honest men over there, Bull Page and the Chink. Bob set down in the kitchen for a cup of coffee—hadn't had no breakfast—and buzzes the Chink. Finally he comes around to the sorrel he'd traded in to the ranch, and asks who rides it now. 'Rebstock,' says the Chink.

"Then Bob waits for Bull Page. He asks Bull whether he thinks there's any chance to get McCrossen to trade the sorrel back to him. Finally he asks Bull who's ridin' the sorrel. Bull says since Barney Rebstock come back, he asked McCrossen if he could fasten onto the sorrel and McCrossen said yes."

Sawdy paused again. There was a general silence.

"That's the story, boys. No, hold on! Barney and Van Tambel left the ranch at daylight this mornin' for the pastures, with Barney on the sorrel!"

"Story enough," grunted McAlpin. "But," he continued, "Barney's pretty cute. If he was goin' to start a fire, wouldn't he take somebody else's horse?"

"I thought that way for a while," intervened Pardaloe. "But Barney can be careless, too—you know that, boys. So I asked Bob to find out, was Barney out that night of the fire; was the sorrel out. Old Bull is a nighthawk around Gunlock—you know that. He may have suspected what was in Bob's mind, but he wouldn't give a whoop anyway. He hates Barney like poison. He told Bob that Barney was the only man outside the bunkhouse that night. And he heard him ridin' away."

Sawdy stopped the general discussion. "Boys, what you goin' to do?"

Pardaloe rose. Some experience in frontier courts of this kind had convinced him that it was time for a sheriff or an ex-sheriff to be moving on.

"Run along, Bill," added Sawdy. "We'll see you later—maybe."

With the ex-sheriff gone, Sawdy called for opinion as to what, if any, action should be taken.

"If any!" exclaimed McAlpin, echoing the words scornfully. "Man alive, you know it ain't a question of 'if any' action. It's a question of what kind of action."

"Got a rope here, McAlpin?"

"Got 'em big and little, old and new."

"Don't misunderstand me, boys," interposed Sawdy. "I want to string him up and down a few times to get the story out of him. A little argument like that'll bring it."

"Boys," said McAlpin, "I've an idea you can catch Rebstock right here in town. If he set the fire, he's got money aplenty. It's burnin' holes in his pockets. Catch your cat in the Red Front saloon; call him out the back door; set him on a horse and ride him down to the bridge—that's gentlemanly and private."

Three Veterans of the Frontier.

"It's the first time in your life, but I guess you are right, McAlpin," said Sawdy. "We've just got to set the rope watch on Barney."

Ten minutes later found the worthies concealed—except McAlpin, detained at the barn—lined up at Jack Spotts' bar.

"Have you seen Barney Rebstock this evenin'?" asked Lefever, casually.

Spotts' face darkened—he, too, hated Barney. "I ain't seen him, and don't ask nothin' like that to make me swear. Boys," he added, addressing the group, "you know Panama spent a whole year tryin' to break me of my bad habit of swearin'. Now, when it's too late for him to know, I'm goin' to quit swearin'. I give public notice, here and now, if any damned man gets me so angry I've got to swear, I'm not goin' to cuss him out, like I used to. No! I'm just goin' to lick hell out of him then and there, so you fellows can tell the boys what to expect."

At that moment the back screen door banged on its hinges and McAlpin, sharp-faced, keen-eyed, and out of breath, rushed into the room. With much celerity and many pantomimic gestures, the Scotsman drew Sawdy far into an empty corner of the saloon. "What's up, Scotty?"

"He's in there," whispered McAlpin. "He's in there right now!"

"Who?"

"Barney!"

"Where?"

"In Boland's saloon! I seen the sorrel standin' at the hitch rack in front when I come along up street, to join you here, so I went in. Hurry, he's there!"

Sawdy pulled a moment at his mustache. "No hurry," he said reflectively. "It's early yet for him. If he's our man, he's got a pocketful of money to blow." He thought a minute further. "Look here, Scotch! Tell our boys over there at the bar to string out quiet and meet back of the barn. Watch your chance. Sneak around to the hitch rack and get the sorrel down to the barn on an old feed-bill claim. I'll tackle Barney in the saloon and see what chance there 's to gettin' him down there. Got a rope ready?"

"I have."

"Vamos!"

McAlpin joined the men at the bar. Sawdy slipped out the back door and, half a block down the alley, walked out into River street and down to the Red Front saloon.

But from the moment the big adventurer stepped out of the back door of one saloon and in at the front door of the other, a curious change took place. He had left Spotts' place sober—Sawdy was in fact a very moderate man. He strode into the Red Front reeling.

The bar was well filled. Sawdy saw at a glance that among the men lined up there were a number of town loafers who never drank except at somebody's expense. When Sawdy caught sight of Redstock with the loafers around him, inference was swift and correct. Barney had money.

The saloonkeeper, Harry Boland, foxy-eyed and alert at the head of the bar, saw Sawdy stagger in through the green baize; he watched the big fellow closely. Sawdy zigzagged back towards the loafers among whom Barney was holding forth.

He greeted Barney gravely, then ordered drinks for everybody in Barney Rebstock's honor. Having lingered over the round, Sawdy cast his eye approvingly upon the thirsty crowd, passed the forefinger of his right hand thoughtfully under each wing of his mustache in turn, drew from a vest pocket a gold double eagle, and made a general proposal.

"I'll match any man here for twenty-dollar gold pieces." It was a fairly safe offer, because he well knew all the loafers put together could not raise twenty dollars.

Barney, after some shilly-shallying, accepted the challenge. He asked Boland to lend him a gold piece. When Boland produced a twenty-dollar coin and tossed it out to Barney, it did not take Sawdy long to figure out that Barney had money and that it was in the keeping of the saloonkeeper. Sawdy, notoriously lucky at matching, lost out after several trials: he quit forty dollars to the bad. But he had Barney greatly inflated by his triumph, with the whole room crowding eagerly around the contestants.

After a round of drinks at Barney's charge, Sawdy brought the talk around to a fine-looking sorrel outside at the hitch rack. Barney claimed it. Sawdy wanted to buy it. Barney demurred.

Boland heard the talk. He drew Barney to the rear end of the bar. "Sell it to him, you fool," whispered Boland. "Don't you see he's drunk as a fiddler? You can get twice what the horse is worth."

Thus encouraged, Barney stepped out of doors with Sawdy, followed by a little circle of the curious.

The horse was gone. This fact caused no great excitement; Sawdy suggested he had got loose and strayed up or down the street and that they take a look around to find him. The curiosity of the crowd weakened, and they re-entered the saloon, hoping for another chance to get a drink. Sawdy and Barney walked down the street together, wrangling as they went over the mischance and the merits of the missing horse. As the pair passed McAlpin's barn it occurred to Sawdy they had better look in and ask for information.

CHAPTER X

A HANGING lantern lighted the bar gangway dimly. Sawdy's call for a hostler was answered by McAlpin himself, who, lantern in hand, ambled in his peculiar gait briskly forward.

"Hello, Mac," exclaimed Sawdy, waving like a tall tree in a number four breeze. "We're looking for Barney's horse," he continued gruffly—"got loose up the street just now—seen anythin' of a stray?"

McAlpin, raising his lantern, looked at Rebstock. "Why, yes, I seen a stray," he admitted sulkily.

"Was it a sorrel?" asked Sawdy with some hope.

"It was a sorrel, Sawdy; saddled and bridled. What about it?"

"It's probably Barney's horse. Let's see it. Where is it?"

McAlpin jerked his head back over his shoulder. "In the box stall. Your horse, Barney?"

"Sure, it's my horse."

"Right this way, Barney," returned McAlpin. "Put out your cigars, boys, and come along with me," he added, lantern in hand. He scuttled down the gangway, Rebstock and Sawdy after him, stopped at the stall box, hung his lantern on a high gangway hook, unlatched the stall door, and pointed within.

Did Not Vote for Presidents

North Carolina took no part in two Presidential elections, the first term of George Washington as President of the United States and of Jefferson Davis as President of the Confederate states.

FARMERS' CHAMPION

OF ALL the leaders of third party movements, probably no one has caused the two major parties more concern than did Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa. For he was the nominee of two new parties which, at two different periods in our history, capitalized on the unrest of the farm vote and in one case he definitely contributed to the defeat of the party in power.

Weaver was first the standard-bearer for the Greenbackers, a party which came into existence in 1868 because of the dissatisfaction of the farmers with the financial policies of Grant's administration. They were inflationists who demanded that a large amount of paper money be issued without regard to specie payment. They received their name from the fact that legal-tender notes were printed in green and called greenbacks. In the campaign of 1876 they nominated Peter Cooper, the New York philanthropist, but he polled only 80,000 popular votes and did not receive a single electoral vote.

In the congressional elections of 1878 the Greenbackers cast a million votes and the Republicans in power looked apprehensively to the presidential campaign of 1880, especially when the Greenbackers nominated a man from the agricultural West. But their fears were groundless, for the Greenbackers could muster only a little more than 300,000 votes and, although Garfield won over Hancock by less than 10,000 popular votes, he got 214 electoral votes to his opponent's 155.

Twelve years later the Republicans had much more to worry over when Weaver bobbed up again, this time as the nominee of the Populist or People's party which declared for free silver, public ownership of monopolies, postal savings banks and an income tax. In the state and congressional elections of 1890 they carried the legislatures of Kansas and Nebraska, elected nine members of congress and forced 34 others, Democrats and Republicans, to pledge themselves to carry out Populist ideas. In the presidential campaign of 1892 Weaver polled more than 1,000,000 votes in the West and South and corralled 22 electoral votes. The Populists also carried several state legislatures and sent five senators to Washington.

"SMITH FOR PRESIDENT"

SINCE the United States has more people bearing the name of Smith than any other family name, it is only natural perhaps that there should have been more presidential candidates by that name than any other.

The first was Joseph E. Smith, founder of the Church of Latter Day Saints and prophet of the Mormon religion, who in 1844 condemned the policies of both the Whig and the Democratic parties and announced his candidacy for the presidency. However, his martyrdom at the hands of an Illinois mob in June of that year cut short his political career.

Four years later another Smith was in the field as a candidate—Gerrit Smith, the New York philanthropist, who was one of the founders of the Liberty party in 1840 and its candidate for President in 1848. In that year he was also indorsed for the presidency by the Industrial Congress at its convention in Philadelphia. Again in 1852 Smith was the candidate of the Liberty party and again he was indorsed by another group, this time by the Land Reformers. In neither case did Smith or his party figure very prominently in the election.

In 1876 there was another one of the name in the presidential race. He was Green Clay Smith, a native of Kentucky, a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars, rising to the rank of brigadier-general in the Union army before resigning to take his seat in congress to which he had been elected while in the field. Re-elected to congress, he resigned to become the second territorial governor of Montana. After three years of service in the West he resigned to enter the ministry of the Baptist church in Washington, D. C. It was soon after his serving as a minister that he was chosen as the first presidential nominee of the modern Prohibition party.

Just as this "dry" Smith failed to win in 1876, so did a "wet" Smith fail to win half a century later. For Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate in 1928, suffered defeat, as did his predecessors.

The Word "Dun"

The word "dun" is supposed by some to be derived from the French "donnez." The British Apollo of 1780 says, however, that the word owes its origin to a Joe Dun, a famous bailiff of Lincoln in the time of Henry VII. He is said to have been so successful in the collection of debts that his name became proverbial. Whenever it seemed almost impossible to make a man pay, people would say, "Why don't you Dun him?"

Old Men Still Useful

Youngest Grandfather
Science Works Two Ways

Even in this day of flaming youth, mature age still has its usefulness.

Arthur Brisbane

The average age of our Supreme Court justices is seventy-one years. Twenty-six years ago Chief Justice Hughes took his seat on the Supreme Court bench. President Taft rendered public service by appointing him to succeed Justice Brewer.

He left the bench to run for President against Woodrow Wilson, and would doubtless have been elected had he not gone to California. Had he been elected he would have remained in the United States and probably would have saved the country ten thousand million dollars that Woodrow Wilson shoveled out in his ecstacy of self-approval.

Rioting in London's "Mile End Road," in which the faces of men and women were slashed with razor blades and one man was thrown through a shop window, etc., seems rather "un-English," to put it mildly. Fist fighting has been encouraged by distinguished Englishmen, including judges, on the ground that it is "better than using knives."

It is better, doubtless, but what about the razor blades?

Germany honors its youngest grandfather, Herman Jahnke, farm laborer, thirty-six years old. Married at seventeen, his eldest daughter became a mother at seventeen.

If all you want is children, that record is satisfactory, although any mouse family could beat it by 25,000 per cent, and almost any microbe by a billion per cent.

If good children were desired, it would have been better for Mr. Jahnke to have his first child at 36, and his first grandchild at 60 or 70; at least that was Plato's opinion.

Justice uses science—the electric chair, the lethal chamber—to punish criminals. The criminal uses science to carry on his trade. An SOS signal, purporting to come from a yacht in distress, drew the coast guard away from the coast of Hawaii, making it convenient for smugglers of narcotics to bring in their cargo. Tear gas, comparatively modern, was used to empty a New York theater where there was labor trouble.

Japan, until recently convinced, mistakenly, that this country is her enemy, and for excellent reasons keeping close watch on Russia and her anti-Japanese Vladivostok airplane and submarine base, now turns suspicious attention on dear old John Bull.

Britain is supposed to have asked nine nations to protest against Japan's demands on China. That should not worry Japan too much. The same old John Bull got fifty-one nations to protest Mussolini's attack on Ethiopia; but, paying no attention, the able Italian went ahead swallowing Ethiopia; sending the little Haile Selassie to live in Switzerland.

In his villa at San Remo, the Duke of Borea D'Olmo celebrates his one hundred and sixth birthday in excellent health. He has been active in Italian court circles since 1841, before the beginning of the United States-Mexican war.

Mussolini tells 200 farmers and industrialists to prepare for a "decisive conflict" that will be necessary "to preserve order against anarchy."

Those that favor the "present civilization," he said, will have to preserve it. "We are at the dawn of a decisive conflict between the representatives of order and anarchy."

Dr. Irving Langmuir, brilliant Nobel prize winner, announced a "counterpart of life," produced chemically; interesting, probably not important. Until some professor can produce "some counterpart of life" able to think, manufacture telescopes, explore the universe and run for office, man's domination will not be threatened. A cigar store Indian is a "counterpart," but not an Indian.

European nations are preparing to recognize the Spanish rebels when they take Madrid and set up a national government.

The idea is to take prompt action and forestall the victorious insurgents' giving Spanish territory to Italy or Germany; the Balearic islands to Italy for instance, to use as naval and air bases, with Ceuta for Germany. This would upset the balance of power in the western Mediterranean and disturb old England, with Egypt and the Suez Canal on her mind.

Dilemma

By RICHARD H. WILKINSON

© Associated Newspapers.
WNU Service.

AS usual Basil came home on the 5:35. It was after dark when he arrived in front of his house on High street. About to turn in at the gate he stopped dead still, his eyes fastened on the automobile that was parked in front of the water hydrant at the curb. A slow but rapidly mounting anger took hold of him.

The automobile was his, and he knew that his wife had left it in front of the hydrant. She had left it there despite his repeated warnings and threats and caterolings and promises. Three times Pat Kearney, the officer on their beat, had spoken to him about the misdemeanor. Pat was a congenial and warm-hearted Irishman, but you couldn't drive him too far. "Now, Mr. Valentine, sur, I'll be stickin' a tag on that car of yourn, if you go an' leave it before that hydrant once more."

Pat's good will was valuable. Besides, Basil couldn't afford to be tagged. Even a small fine would be sorely felt. And so he had talked to Evelyn. He had pointed out the importance of obeying traffic regulations, his inability to pay fines for her negligence, the fact that Pat had spoken to him three times. And she had promised. Even though it was the "most convenient place in the world to leave the car" and she thought Pat Kearney was an "old meany," she promised to be more careful hereafter.

Which, obviously, hadn't meant a thing. Here was the car in the same old place, and Pat due to come by on his rounds any moment. Basil's anger heightened. Evelyn was thoughtless and selfish and irresponsible. She ought to be taught a lesson.

He felt in his pocket, and his fingers closed on a duplicate key to the car. An idea flashed across his mind. He'd move the car down town and install it in a garage. Then he'd tell Evelyn that Pat had tagged it and that because he couldn't pay the fine he'd left the machine at police headquarters for collateral. That ought to teach her a thing or two. He'd leave it in the garage for a full week; let her resort to walking for a while and see how she liked it.

Grimly he stepped to the curb and inserted his duplicate key into the door lock. His anger was at a high level; he gave the key a violent twist—which snapped it off near the stem.

A feeling of dismay took hold of him. He tried to work the broken section out with his fingers, and found the task impossible. He glanced up and down the street. In a moment Pat would be along, and Pat would have a tag ready and waiting. He considered running in and getting his wife's key, but remembered that wouldn't do any good because the lock was choked with the broken end.

He felt a little panicky. Somehow he'd have to move the machine from in front of the hydrant, or it meant paying a fine. It would take time to fetch a pair of pliers or call a garage mechanic. And Pat wouldn't listen to explanations—not after the third warning.

Basil began to sweat. There was just one course open. He'd have to break a window, reach in and unlock the door from the inside, release the handbrake and push the vehicle beyond the forbidden parking area. He hated to resort to such a procedure, because in the end it would cost him more than a fine. Still, that was better than having Pat Kearney's ire aroused.

He felt on the ground, found a fair sized stone and without hesitation or compunction crashed it against the window. The glass splintered, but didn't break. He smacked it again and there was a great shattering sound. He reached quickly inside, unlocked the door and climbed into the driver's seat. At that moment Pat Kearney rounded the corner beyond Mark Terrance's place.

Basil worked fast. There was still time to move the car before the policeman covered the intervening distance. He released the handbrake, quickly disembarked and ran around back. He put his shoulder against the spare tire and began to shove. The car moved slowly.

Digging his heels into the ground Basil continued to heave with his shoulder. Thus it was that his gaze came into direct line with the license plate beneath the tail light. At first he noticed nothing unusual, but gradually it dawned on him that something was wrong. And then abruptly it struck him like a blot from the blue. The license plate wasn't red and white, but orange and black. Which meant that the car that Basil was pushing wasn't his car at all! Though it resembled his in every respect, it belonged to some one else! Some one from out of state! And that, of course, explained why Basil's key had broken off in the lock.

Basil straightened up. There was alarm and guilt and fear in his eyes. Without further thought on the matter, however, he started toward his own gate with steps that lagged not. But at the very moment he would have unhooked the latch, he heard a shout, a very lusty and imperious shout. Someone had come out of Mark Terrance's house and was racing toward him, and on the heels of this someone came Pat Kearney.

POULTRY

POULTRY FARMERS NEED WORK PLANS

Yearly Schedule Assures Pleasure, Profit.

By J. C. Taylor, Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture.
WNU Service.

Don't wait until the peak of the egg production season to prepare egg cases or delay cleaning and repairing brooder equipment until a few weeks before chicks are hatched. Include these regular tasks of poultry keeping in a yearly schedule of work and obtain more profit and pleasure from poultry farming. Too many poultrymen fail to organize their farms properly.

A poultryman who spends seven and a half hours a year caring for one chicken can only manage a flock of 450 birds, while the poultryman who spends but one and a half hours per bird each year can take care of a flock of 2,000.

A schedule of work will go a long way in increasing labor efficiency. In laying out such a program, plan it on a daily basis first and include all the chores that must be done every day of the year, such as feeding the birds and preparing the eggs for market, and allow a certain amount of time for each task. Poultrymen who have never followed a regular routine will be surprised to find that these farm chores can be done in considerably less time.

Then plan the schedule on a monthly or yearly basis to fit the daily routine and to distribute seasonal work more evenly during the year. Arrange to do such work as cleaning, repairing and ordering new parts for the brooder and preparing egg cases so that routine work will not have to be neglected nor extra labor hired during the rush seasons.

Fowl Paralysis Often the Cause of Lameness

Lameness of pullets is sometimes caused by worm infestations, by digestive disorders or poisoning or by certain nerve troubles, but the commonest cause is range or fowl paralysis, states a writer in the Montreal Herald.

The symptoms of this desease may appear suddenly or may develop rather slowly. At first, a wing may droop slightly, or there may be a slight lameness marked by a rather jerky gait; then the use of the affected leg may be lost altogether. Both legs may then be affected and sometimes both wings, and finally the bird goes down completely. The eyes are frequently affected, as well; the iris becomes a grayish white or slate color and blindness usually follows this change. The bird may appear healthy in other respects and may have a good appetite; however, with the loss of sight, the bird is unable to see to eat, and emaciation is apt to be the result, followed by death. The disease usually runs a course of 2 or 3 weeks after the symptoms are first noticed, although occasional deaths occur suddenly due to heart failure. In some cases, blindness and the change in color of the iris appear before the paralysis. Diarrhea sometimes develops in the final stages.

Grain to Develop Birds

In feeding grain the poultryman should bear in mind that birds will not develop normally on grain alone, and that a balanced developing mash should be before the birds at all times. Good results have been secured by having both grain and mash available to the birds at all times. Other poultrymen give a liberal feeding of grain in the morning and again in the evening. Both systems have given good results and the main thing to remember is that grain should be fed more liberally during the developing period than at any other time and that the grain mixture should consist of equal parts of yellow corn and wheat.

Fattening Ducklings

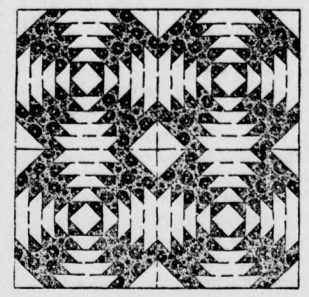

The Pekin is the most desirable breed when ducklings are wanted to mature early as green ducks. They are good feeders and rapid growers, and respond to special methods of feeding, says the Montreal Herald. Frequent feeding promotes rapid growth. Young ducklings should be fed six times daily from the start until they are about 18 to 20 days old, and five times daily during the remainder of the growing and fattening period until they are ready for market.

Skimmilk for Poultry

On farms where liquid skimmilk is available it will be found to be an economical source of good proteins. When liquid milk is not available a condensed or dried skimmilk or buttermilk may be used for poultry. When liquid milk is available it should be used as the only drink for the first three or four weeks. The liquid milk may be fed from earthenware, tin, aluminum or granite fountains. Galvanized fountains are not as satisfactory for liquid milk.

Bay Celebration Tickets On Sale

San Francisco, Oct. 22—In preparation for the celebration Nov. 12, 13 and 14 of the opening for traffic of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge, featuring two spectacular and impressive parades, announcement was made today that 40,000 grand stand parade seats at San Francisco's civic center will be available to the public.

Railroads, hotels and travel agencies report advance indications of a minimum of 300,000 out-of-town visitors during the celebration, from California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and other western states.

The citizen's committee in charge of the festival has made allotments of seats for visitors, but desire to impress on prospective out-of-town visitors the necessity of ordering their seats at once.

Main ticket headquarters have been established at the Manx hotel, Powell and O'Farrell streets, San Francisco, tickets being $2.50, entitling the holder to a seat at both parades.

The parades, planned to outrival any similar spectacles ever held in the west, will be held on Friday afternoon, Nov. 13, and on Saturday night, Nov. 14, the night parade being the last word in electrical embellishment and brilliancy.

To Fly Plane From the East

Hillis Ashworth, prominent San Jose State college aviator, is scheduled to depart from Pennsylvania today, with the ultimate objective of flying a recently purchased airplane back to San Jose.

The plane, a high winged monoplane, was bought by the college flying club to bolster their intimacy with actual flying.

Ashworth will fly approximately the same course as used by the main United Airline between New York and San Francisco, hitting Toledo, Chicago, Des Moines, Cheyenne, and Reno.

If weather conditions are favorable, the trip is expected to take about 40 hours.

The plane cost in the neighborhood of $1400 and has a cruising speed of 75 miles per hour.

Arm Almost Useless With Rheumatic Agony! RUX Brings Peace to Rancher

"Suffered 20 Years' Misery — Could Hardly Move From Bed at Last. Relieved by Williams R.U.X. Compound in 7 Days!" Testifies Prominent Rancher

THOUSANDS of people in every part of the West, who have suffered for years from the terrible pains of Rheumatism, are finding new relief by using Williams R.U.X. Compound, the private formula of an Army Doctor. Druggists report that many local sufferers praise it, and testimonials have already come in from hundreds of grateful users. Here is a typical letter from a rancher well known in his community—Mr. George Woodstock of Standish, Calif., who has lived there all his life. Read this convincing testimonial carefully, for it offers proof BEYOND THE SHADOW OF A DOUBT.

Awful Rheumatic Pain

"I am 62 years of age, lived here all my life. I have suffered rheumatic pains for 20 years, but the last few years I have gradually got worse until my arm was almost useless with rheumatic agony, and I could not do the work on my ranch. At last I could hardly move from bed. I guess I tried almost everything, but got no results. My wife noticed an ad in the paper here and persuaded me to use Williams R.U.X. Compound. I had only taken it for 7 days when the pains had been greatly relieved, and today I am back doing my work. Williams R.U.X. Compound is the only medicine that ever helped me. I certainly recommend this wonderful medicine to anyone having rheumatic pain. Thanks a thousand times to Williams R.U.X. Compound."

"Nothing helped my rheumatic pain in 20 years but Williams R.U.X. Compound," gratefully writes Mr. George Woodstock, western rancher.

DARK EVENINGS AHEAD!

Keep every light socket filled with the right size bulb

Eyes need plenty of light these longer and darker evenings. Your eyes are doing more work and closer work indoors than they have done for many months. The eyestrain season is here!

Help protect your eyesight. See that every light socket is filled with the right size bulb. Replace dim, blackened bulbs, too. Good lamps cost less than ever ... and so does electricity with Reduced Electric Rates. Use more light generously to guard priceless eyesight during the fall and winter season of longer, darker evenings.
